

The Hilton Hawaiian Village Beach Resort & Spa has a long, proud history in Hawai'i. With close to 3,000 rooms, the Hilton Hawaiian Village Beach Resort & Spa is one of the Hilton Hotels Corporation's (100 percent) flagship properties, occupying a 22-acre parcel of prime real estate along Waikiki's widest stretch of beach.

With its rich history in Hawai'i, social responsibility and environmental stewardship are cornerstones here at the Hilton Hawaiian Village. So much so, that the hotel was one of the first hotels in Waikiki to launch a Green Business Program in 2000 as a proactive effort to preserve Hawaii's precious environment. Today, Hilton's Green Business Program is an integral part of daily operations with both Team Members and guests helping to contribute to a "greener" future. In the past seven years, our Green Business Program has made significant advances in the areas of conservation and recycling. Specifically:

- The hotel has made improvements and changes to the appliances that are used to encourage energy efficiency.
- In the Housekeeping department, changing out linen and towels are done on a request-only basis. That also goes for the turndown service, where towels are usually replaced.
- With 22 acres of lush greens and waterfalls, the Landscaping department has found ways to adjust the irrigation of the numerous ponds and waterfalls to recycle and re-use the water.
- In our kitchens, fat from our deep fryers are recycled and converted into diesel fuel.
- Also in our kitchens, food waste does not get wasted. Instead, it is sent to produce animal food.

In the areas of recycling, here are some facts:

- We recycled close to 220,000 pounds of cardboard in each of the last two years.
- The beginning of the HI-5 recycling redemption program gave us greater reason to ensure all of the recyclable beverage containers were being recycled. That totaled close to 160,000 in just one year.
- When it comes to paper recycling, we've consistently recycled more than 176,000 pounds of paper a year.

Being "green" is everyone's responsibility and the Hilton Hawaiian Village is proud to share in this effort.
