FARMERS HELPING FARMERS

Background:

The Molokai Homestead Farmers Alliance (MHFA) is a homestead organization established in 2005 to bring awareness of advocating for water rights for Hawaiians. Through these accomplishments they developed many partnerships and resources for energy savings methods, environmentally friendly programs, recyclable/reusable items, economic stability, value-added products, and greener methods with homesteaders, farmers and backyard farmers, and community members. They strive to be proactive in a leadership role to improve a greener Molokai.

Highlights:

MHFA holds TeleHealth classes to provide refurbished laptops and introductory computer skills to Molokai residents.

The second annual Molokai Community Resource Fair provided community members with information to learn more about emergency preparedness and access to on-island services and resources.
